That's why he was smart and gave himself a bionic nose chip. So that he can smell a picnic a hundred feet away.

Chapter 6 by NSNL/CoPri ThatOneDudet

Jeremy knew a lot about the world, but wanted to know more than every bunny could. He would look upon the hairless giants, some smaller than others, some wider than others, and some lighter than others. Jeremy would pray to these giants, wishing upon the North Star, that he would be able to understand them better, vice versa.

Chapter 7 by Anna Hesse

So he found a pet shop. He sold himself in to slavery for cheese.

Chapter 8 by Wonder Story - In College

And this was the life of Jeremy the Rabbit.

The rabbit who hated carrots but loved cheese.

The cheese he loved so much that he had a bionic nose chip installed so that he could smell it more than 30 meters away.

The chip he sold in order to get himself into slavery for cheese.

The slavery of a boy named Derek, who was his own hairless giant who fed him cheese.

Derek, who bought a lady rabbit for Jeremy to mate with.

The mating that produced Julie.

Julie was a baby rabbit.

The only bunny ever to hate grass.

Julie liked Doritos.
